Top Floor Of Jail Made Into Lunchroom

"It took one month to clean it up so we could work in it," said City Manager Tevis Huguey in referring to the newly operational lunchroom atop the city jail.

Cleanup began in November of last year with the removal of stored bicycles that had been abandoned, mattresses, cardboard boxes of odds-and-ends and other litter that normally accumulates with any storage room.

Tuesday, a group of city officials and interested persons toured the new facility which included a modern kitchen, walk-in freezer and pantry, and were treated to a hot lunch of stew meat, stew, mashed potatoes, string beans, real corn bread and iced tea.

Second were available, the same as for prisoners, and the total price per meal is figured at 13c.

The regular paint job on the bottom two floors has been held up because of the excessive jail population, according to Tevis Huguey, City Manager. However, the new lunchroom is the first step toward renovation of the property.

Chief Charles D. Goodlett said that future plans include having all jail employees wear white coveralls.

Although there is not an exercise yard at the jail, inmates who will work on city projects are encouraged to do so, said Goodlett.

Occasionally, prisoners from the county sheriff's substation are kept at the jail and the county then pays the city $3.00 per day, per prisoner.

THOUGHT OF THE WEEK

PATRIOTISM IS NOT NECESSARILY INCLUDED IN REBELLION. A MAN MAY HATE HIS KING, YET NOT LOVE HIS COUNTRY. —Samuel Johnson

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing
EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

One of the big success stories of recent years has been the technical education programs sponsored by the states and carried out with the cooperation and assistance of private enterprise. Great numbers of working people, whose occupations either weren't very rewarding or whose line of work has been virtually abolished by automation, have learned new skills and found new employment in industry.

These technical training programs have proved to be a roaring success wherever the heavily funded War on Poverty programs have been a dismal failure. Part of the reason why that the former are dealing with the best type of human material — people who are eager to work. Fortunately, despite all the brainwashing the American people have been subjected to on welfareism, the vast majority of our citizens want to work. They are what the sociologists call "inner-directed."

They prefer to stand on their own feet and support themselves rather than be supported by the federal government. There is, however, a very different element in this country — an element that might be described as the hard core non-worker. These are the people who are drones. Nowadays, it isn't fashionable to refer to anyone as a drone. The "bleeding hearts" really begin to bleed if anyone suggests that some people are "bums" who want a free ride through life.

Yet the drones are a reality. Every society has had the problem of this element to some degree. Not all people are equally motivated. In the past, the sharp edge of poverty limited the size of the non-productive drone population. There were absolute conditions of hunger and privation that drove men to take a job or they preferred to starve in bed in the morning. Today this sharp edge of reality has been blunted. A multitude of social services reduce even the most severe "poverty," in today's terms, to relative deprivation — to not having as much as the next fellow.

The man or woman who doesn't want to work will find reality cushioned by federal handouts. He will be encouraged to believe that his difficult lot in life is the fault of society, not this own fault. Working citizens are told that this is a sick society and that it is their obligation to provide more and bigger benefits for the non-workers. They are told that they have an obligation to make a commitment of personal sacrifice to the economically or socially "disadvantaged."

Certainly, charity always is a worthy thing. But it is not charitable in any true sense to encourage people in their laziness or to make the self-reliant citizen feel that he is immoral in not wanting to pay for other people's laziness.

We have the strange situation today wherein a flood of tears is shed for the shirkers, for the sit-down specialists in society. The whole rhetoric of contemporary social preaching is off-base. These self-reliant citizens are told that they are committing violence when they don't do more for the "disadvantaged." Yet no one cries the violence being done to our society when a woman has five or six children put of wedlock and gives no thought to how they will be fed and housed.

It is time for an end to the put to the excessive solicitude lavished on people who make a career of dependency in our society. The cultivation of wrap up values is damaging this country as much as a foreign enemy could do with bullets and shells. This thought must have been in the minds of countless viewers who watched the television coverage of the Poor People's Caravan and heard one woman say she was joining the pilgrimage because her husband earned "only $100 a week."

This remark indicates very clearly the escalation of nonsense in America. Each year, the government does more to help the non-workers, and each year government heaps larger burdens on working citizens.

Flamenco Dancing Must Be Spain's National Dance

The Flamenco Dancers are advertised in all the cities. This must be the national dance just as bullfighting is the national sport. Some of our group went to the Flamenco dancing in Gouda where gypsy dancing was included.

These gypsies lived in caves up on a hillside beyond the Alhambra. Four of us made reservations in Madrid one evening and took a taxi to the bella Rosa. The dancing starts at 11 P. M., though you can go as early as 9:30 for dinner. There were eight girls seated in chairs at the back of the stage. Their dresses were bright colors and fitted snugly over the hips and had three or four double wide ruffles at the bottom.

The necks were high in front but completely backed down to the waist.

The one male dancer had tight black pants, a white shirt with jabot ruffles and a very short red necktie. There were male singers, and two guitarists.

Each girl came out and did a solo number, sometimes with a man was singing. All of the other seated dancers clapped in time with the music. This combined with the noise of the dancer's feet, was almost deafening.

The dance is very strenuous and the girls' long hair, long earrings and voluminous ruffles was very colorful and entertaining. Each of them looked exhausted when the finished.

The footwork of the man dancer was remarkable. He would change pace from fast to slow, much like a tap dancer.

Every since reading about the Royal Palace in the Miami Herald a few years ago, I have hoped to see it. The reason that this palace is more remarkable than any other in Europe is that the Royal family left in 1931. It was formerly a Moorish castle and is built of limestone, marble and wood.

We walked up a wide marble stairway to the second floor. One room has been completely restored as it had a high dome and was demolished in the Revolution.

The other rooms on the second floor were protected by the bedrooms which are on the third floor. The fresco painting was done by Italian and Spanish artists. Each room had a beautiful gold and rock crystal chandelier, a rug that was especially woven to fit, walls either covered with silk, oil paintings or large tapestries. I counted several tapestries in a hall, some were 1824 feet long.

Each room had a different color scheme, and the furniture always matched. This was covered with silk or tapestry. There were carved chests, tables and wardrobes and the walls were covered with gold leaf. There were also stoves and built-in glass cabinets filled with priceless pieces, vases and clocks.

The dining room was a lovely sight. The table was 147 feet long and would seat 120 guests. There was an embroidered tablecloth on the table. Besides sure candlesticks, there were also marble columns, ming vases and gold relief work on the walls.

The walls of each room were decorated, some with figures of people and in many of the corners were small statues or just the heads. This is the most elegant of all the places we have visited.

Franco lives in El Pardo, a short distance from Madrid, and comes in for state functions once a month and to receive and entertain visiting dignitaries. This palace is a state museum and is open to the public.

A few of us took a taxi to the Tapestry Factory. The first factory was established in 1746. At this time over seventy pieces in gold and silver were woven for the Royal Palace.

In the display room were money samples of tapestry in the shapes of animals. There was a picture by Goya, and above it a tapestry reproduction in tapestry. In the first room we visited they were making rugs — yarn in all colors behind the workers.

The wool was pulled through the framework, knotted and then spun. They were making a rug for Prince Grace of Monaco, which was grey with sprays of gold and orange. Many women were kneeling over old tapestries. In the rug room where the tapestries the walls. The floor was parquetry of two colors of wood in a geometric pattern. Franco uses this about once a year for a banquet.

As we came to the private chapel, music was playing. On one side was red velvet canopy with chairs underneath for the king and queen. In every corner were ornate clocks in every shape imaginable. Many had statues at the sides and on top. Some were trimmed in gold. One clock had over a thousand diamonds. In the clock room were over fifty clocks all running and keeping good time. These were made of wood, bronze, marble and alabaster. One clock was in a bird cage, and there were many pendulum clocks.

One had a calendar with the month and year on it. The most 1931. It was formerly a Moorish castle and is built of limestone, marble and wood.

Many had statues at the sides and on top. Some were trimmed in gold. One clock had over a thousand diamonds. In the clock room were over fifty clocks all running and keeping good time. These were made of wood, bronze, marble and alabaster. One clock was in a bird cage, and there were many pendulum clocks.

One had a calendar with the month and year on it. The most 1931. It was formerly a Moorish castle and is built of limestone, marble and wood.

We walked up a wide marble stairway to the second floor. One room has been completely restored as it had a high dome and was demolished in the Revolution.

The other rooms on the second floor were protected by the bedrooms which are on the third floor. The fresco painting was done by Italian and Spanish artists. Each room had a beautiful gold and rock crystal chandelier, a rug that was especially woven to fit, walls either covered with silk, oil paintings or large tapestries. I counted several tapestries in a hall, some were 1824 feet long.

Each room had a different color scheme, and the furniture always matched. This was covered with silk or tapestry. There were carved chests, tables and wardrobes and the walls were covered with gold leaf. There were also stoves and built-in glass cabinets filled with priceless pieces, vases and clocks.

The dining room was a lovely sight. The table was 147 feet long and would seat 120 guests. There was an embroidered tablecloth on the table. Besides sure candlesticks, there were also marble columns, ming vases and gold relief work on the walls.

The walls of each room were decorated, some with figures of people and in many of the corners were small statues or just the heads. This is the most elegant of all the places we have visited.

A few of us took a taxi to the Tapestry Factory. The first factory was established in 1746. At this time over seventy pieces in gold and silver were woven for the Royal Palace.

In the display room were money samples of tapestry in the shapes of animals. There was a picture by Goya, and above it a tapestry reproduction in tapestry. In the first room we visited they were making rugs — yarn in all colors behind the workers.

The wool was pulled through the framework, knotted and then spun. They were making a rug for Prince Grace of Monaco, which was grey with sprays of gold and orange. Many women were kneeling over old tapestries. In the rug room where the tapestries

Ancient and Modern Necromancy, also Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced.

"They that war against these shall be as nothing and as a thing of nought. For I the Lord thy God will hold thee right hand, saying, Fear not; I will help thee."

These verses from Isaiah are the Golden Text of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday. "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, also Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced" is the title of the Lesson.

The service is open to the public.

Passages from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include these lines, "At all times and under all circumstances, overcome evil with good. Know thyself, and God will supply the wisdom and the occasion for a victory over evil."

Ladies Auxiliary Officers Seated

The home of Mrs. Tillie Roth, 116 NW Ave. J, last Thursday, was the scene of a gay and sadistic as the ladies' Aux. of Temple Beth Shalom gathered for the final meet of the season. The majority of the members will be leaving for distant places for the summer.

A delicious buffet luncheon was served after which Marjorie Latham installed the following officers for the coming season:

Sue Kaufman, Pres.; Ricky Arons, Vice Pres.; Nicky Mulberg, Secretary; and Natalie Nachman, Treas. Sue Kaufman was presented with a lovely gift as a token of appreciation from the membership for her fine efforts during the past year as president.

Those attending, including the above, were: Ellie Morgan, Nola Nager, Mae Magrill, Helen Rubin, Tina Rubin, Marcie Laks, Martha Lee, Marilyn Joe, Joan Levy and Molly Pearson.

WITNESSES BAPTIZE 23 MINISTERS AT CONVENTION

John C. Rainbow, city supervisor of the Belle Glade congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, said the three-day seminar in West Palm Beach was a success.

The program Friday evening highlighted the Assembly theme, "Rainbow continued. Strengthening One Another to Remain in the Faith." The symposium of ministers showed how to progressively do this.

The Saturday program saw the baptizing of 23 new ministers. Last year alone, he stated, "74,981 were baptized worldwide. That would be about one individual every 10 minutes that becomes one of Jehovah's Witnesses."

The peak attendance of 1562 was reached Sunday for the widely publicized lecture "Why Does God Permit Wickedness?" delivered by B. E. Giffin, District Supervisor from the Watchtower Society's headquarters in New York. Turning to the Bible book of Genesis, he said how wickedness started with rebellion at the start, but that would not have satisfied settled matters.

Answering the question why rebellion was not arrested at the time it started, Mr. Giffin stated: "True, God could have wiped out the rebellion at its start, but that would not have satisfied settled matters. Therefore, God has permitted a full measure of time for rebellion men and their invisible leader, Satan to build up their organization. In this way God has enabled all invisible creation, both in the intelligible spirit world and on earth, to see the consequences of rebellion."

"What is the result?" he continued. "Has the course of rebellion against God proved better for mankind? Has it brought them lasting happiness?"

In conclusion Mr. Giffin said, "Surely God's long permission of rebellion and its resulting wickedness prove to all reasonable men that satisfactory rule of earth's affairs is impossible apart from God. That is what God told man in the beginning. Consequently, God will not allow rebellion to wreck this earth. Instead, for the benefit of decent people, he, in his due time, will bring to ruin those running the earth."

SURVIVAL KIT

Troop 601 sponsored by St. John's Episcopal Church found survival tough this past weekend, May 25th and 26th.

The Troop went to Fish-eating Creek on their annual survival kit trip and proved that you can stay dry without tents during sustained rain if a couple of pieces of plastic are included in your survival kit.

Survival kits consisted of: Water purification tablets, 2 pieces of plastic sheeting, aluminum foil, waterproof matches, blanket, canteen, hatchet, knife, flour, salt, cooking oil, personal first aid kit, fishing line, lures, hooks, raincoat and a compass. All of these had to be contained in a packet no larger than a shaving kit, with plastic and blanket in a horse shoe roll with one piece of plastic outside to form a water proof cover.

The fish were not very cooperative, snakes nonexistent, and the armadillos were too fast so food was scarce.

Adults supervising were Scoutmaster Reg Lewis, Dick Shoemaker and Stan Allgood. Transportation was furnished by Herman Closs, Dick Shoemaker and Reg Lewis.

BG GARDEN CLUB DEDICATES TREE TO MRS. IVAN VAN HORN

Since coming to Belle Glade in 1935, Mrs. Ivan Van Horn has been active in raising flowers, shrubs, and trees and in Garden Club work. She became president of the Belle Glade Garden Club in 1949-50. She was instrumental in getting the park grounds, which was donated by the county, cleaned up, and donated many trees, plants and seeds such as Coastal Apple, Hibiscus and others. She served in all offices of the club and on various committees and as chairman.

She was Director of District 6, Florida Federation of Garden Clubs for two years and later when it was split, she served as director District 10 for one year. During this time she traveled many miles all over the state, instructing and demonstrating as well as giving to the local club, valuable information and guiding them in flower shows. The one using the "Black Gold" theme won the State Purple Award. Becoming more and more involved in this work which she loved, Mrs. Van Horn studied and accomplished all that she set out to do. For two years she was chairman of the Garden Club Short Course at Gainesville; as one of the first instructors in the National Cottage Club, taught flower arranging, corsage making; She holds a National certificate of State Garden Club Landscape Design Critics; has a life membership in the Florida Federation of Garden Clubs. Another honor of which she can be justly proud is her master's degree in Flower Show Judging which required 12 to 14 years of study and judging to attain.

"Every minute was worthwhile, I feel that I have gotten more out of it than I put in," Mrs. Van Horn, modestly remarked.

Evans Speaks On Evolution

By Zedek Shapiro

A hundred years ago the idea that man may have evolved from another form of life was not discussed in public society, let alone in our schools or in the school newspaper. Yet today few people question Darwin's Theory on evolution and it is candidly discussed in our classrooms. When this writer interviewed Mr. John Evans, our BGS teacher he was quite willing to discuss the subject.

The first question that we asked Mr. Evans was "What do you expect the future trends in the teaching of biology to be?"

MR. EVANS: "It is my belief that there will be more of the lecture and lab type classes than there have been with the traditional methods of teaching biology."

The interview continued with my question "Would you compare the BGHS program with the traditional methods of teaching biology?"

MR. EVANS: "It has more lab investigations."

"Is there a difference in the teaching of the theory of evolution with BGHS?"

"No just with the approach."

"What approach?"

"You approach evolution more on how it affects life today, not as a straight theory."

"As a scientist, what is your view on the theory of evolution?"

"I believe evolution to be completely factual simply because it can be observed occurring right now. Most people confuse evolution (which means life is continually changing to adapt to environment) in that they immediately say it is contradictory to their beliefs and convictions. Proof for evolution lies in many, many accounts of controlled experiments done by scientists over the past century. One such recent experiment was done by Dr. Sidney Fox at Florida State University when he synthetically made a life-like cell. Other proof can be found for evolution in the study of fossils. If evolution cannot occur, how does one account for the different types of fossils which have been found that show the changes organisms have undergone as the environment changed."

The final question that we asked Mr. Evans was, "What do you believe to be the future of the theory?"

As for Darwin's Theory, it is probably as good as any other theory. It has not been disproved nor has it been proved completely fact. There will probably be changes made in it as time goes on. Darwin himself thought this. No matter how one believes the method of evolution to be, if he looks at the facts (open-mindedly) he would have to agree that evolution occurs. I try myself never to lose sight of the fact that evolution didn't just happen however, it had direction and meaning. Darwin too believed this it seems to me, after reading "The Origin of Species." There is grandeur in this view of life, with its several powers, having been originally breathed by the Creator into a few forms or into one; and that, whilst this planet has gone cycling on according to the fixed law of gravity, from so simple a beginning, endless forms most beautiful and wonderful have been, and are being evolved."

Throughout the interview Mr. Evans emphasized the fact that evolution is now considered to be true by practically everyone. He also made clear that he was not trying to contradict any religious beliefs.

President of the Week

the class proved their ability to work together. They had the honor of winning the float competition at Homecoming. They were headed by their class president, Sonny Crawford. Of his class, Sonny said to the seniors, "We'll be the best senior class ever, just come back and see!"

Sonny was born on November 18, 1952 in McComb, Mississippi. He moved to Belle Glade 5 years ago. Sonny is the son of Otis Crawford, football coach at Belle Glade High School. Varsity football, baseball, basketball and track fill his athletic curriculum to overflowing. Sonny is a Marshall in Demolay. When asked what his future plans were, Sonny replied that playing college football placed at his number one goal. But Sonny has two more years at BGHS and his horoscope reads — an active leader of his class.

Class Night

Tomorrow night at 8:00, the Belle Glade High School Gymnasium will be filled with the proud families and friends of the 1968 Graduating Class. They will be there for the Senior's Class Night.

The idea on which this year's Class Night is based is the Academy Awards. For the first time, the presentation of awards and skits by the class have been combined. The skits will involve satires on several current movies, while the awards will cover General Excellence in various fields, Citizenship, and Honorary Awards. The highest honors are Best-All-Around girl and boy, which are selected by the teachers.

President's Farewell

The time has come for closing books and long last looks must end, but at I leave I know I'm leaving my best friends who taught me right from wrong and weak from strong that's a lot to learn. Most of all I feel that having served as your Vice President and President the members of the Lake Shore Family have given me more essential things such as the ability to work with a large group of people, the will to fight when there is no one else to fight and most of all you have instilled in me the desire to strive for the top although there will be obstacles of many kinds.

Sure, there have been times when there was nothing left in me but the will to hold on. During those times, like any other student I was willing to stop; but I realized a gutter will never win and a winner will never quit. Then one day while leisurely reading I discovered a poem that was dear and has really given me the courage and inspiration I needed to tackle any problem. "If" By Rudyard Kipling.

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you;
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated, don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise;
If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with Kings—nor lose the common touch;
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you;
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run—
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And—which is more—
You'll be a man, my friend!

Farewell to you the Lake Shore Family '68.

Class Poem for Class of '68

We have finally reached the top of the stairs
We are about to realize the answer to our prayers
We have ended the years of childish ways
We enter into society for what it is worth and pays
It is time that we must walk in our adult life we must now begin
It is time that we as individuals must seek
The goals of success on a high or peak

We must reach now for the sky
And catch the opportunities flying by.
The time has come when we must take a stand
Our civic duties we must understand
Our contribution to society we must give
To make this world a better place in which to live
We must now leave our joys
Store away our childhood toys
We must now put to use our tools
Which we have acquired from Lake Shore High School
The tools which must take us through the door
The tools which shall live forever more

The Seniors of '68
Have finally approached the gate
We shall enter in with grace
Letting no one slow our pace
We have reached a new walk in life
A walk which took twelve years of strife

We have come to the beginning of a new and rugged road
We must fight the blowing stormy winds
And carry our share of the load.
We will climb the high mountain
And swim the tossing sea
This will be made possible
Because of our beloved community

We walk into society with an air of dignity
With thanks to our administration and our faculty
We thank you for the days well spent
For the lives you helped to make
For all the joys and happiness
Which because of you we now cheer.

We'll say goodbye with a sad yet grateful sigh
But most (worst) of all dear Lake Shore High
To you we must now say goodbye.

Standing at the Crossroads Senior Class Song

We're standing at the crossroads of life
We're standing at the crossroads of life
Don't know which way to go
Don't know which way to turn
Soon we're leaving the school that we love—
For Lake Shore our hearts will yearn
So we're standing at the crossroads of life
We were here—
You must agree
We ran around and caused misery
But we love you and can't deny
That without you we'd surely cry
It hurts to leave you
And it hurts to say goodbye.
We're standing at the crossroads of life
Just standing at the crossroads of life
Don't know which way to turn
Don't know which way to turn
Don't know which way to turn
There'll be tears on our cheeks
Cause we're approaching the peak
Heartache and emotions
Heartbreak and devotion
Loving, caring, but it's despairing
Trying to be true to you, always loving you.
So we're standing at the crossroads of life
Just standing at the crossroads of life
Don't know which way to turn
Now we're standing at the crossroads.
Don't know which way to turn
Don't know which way to turn
Which way shall we go?

"Is your father or mother, in?" the visitor asked.
"No," replied the small boy who had opened the door.
"They was in, but they is out."
"All right, boy," he sighed.
"What's happened to your grammar?"
"Oh," said the boy, "She goes upstairs for a laydown."

Editor's Farewell Janice Perry To Serve As Editor

It's been a rough year for me being Editor of the Bobcat Page for the school year '68, but in many ways than one it has been a rewarding one. I have come to realize even more so the responsibility of thousands depending on you to do your job. It's been a job to write, find and print news for the school term for approximately 36 weeks but it had to be done and we the members of the staff of '68 did it whether it was small or large.

In my welcome address as the editor for the page for '68 I vowed to you the public and the Lake Shore family to do "my best" in the writing of the Bobcat Page. Being editor was a challenge but even though I have enjoyed myself I've gotten the thrill out of being editor of the page and the rough bumps for neglecting my responsibility.

I feel that I along with Mrs. Peale, our Newspaper Staff sponsor, and the members of the staff of '68 that we have done our job and I hope that next year's is an even better one for our editor-in-chief '69 Janice Perry, and her staff.

I'd like to express my thanks and appreciation to the members of the Belle Glade Herald for their participation in the production of the Bobcat Page for the school term.

Newspaper Sponsor Speaks

This year has been as any other year, with our trials and tears; but having the editor and staff have it all small while. I'd like to express my sincere gratitude and thanks to my editor for a job well done; to my staff for their willing along with me in the administration, faculty, student body, and community for assisting us in any way that you could and last but not least, to you, the staff at Belle Glade Herald for making this all possible.

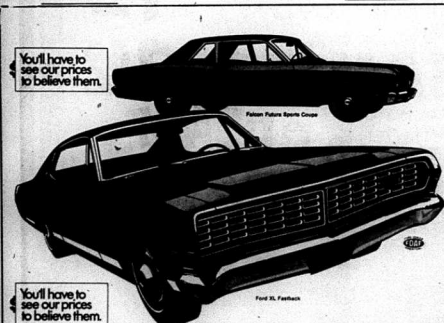

Edwina M. Cargill
Sponsor

I Janice Perry would like to express my deepest gratitude to those of you who appointed me as your editor-in-chief, which I am now currently about to take in the fall school year. I wish to say that I will do as I stated earlier, chief, '69 which I am now currently my utmost as editor for the betterment of the page, which I know a great majority of you fellow Bobcats will expect me to do. Indeed I wish to extend my gratification unduly to those of you who thought considerably enough to think that I am capable of fulfilling my job as your editor-in-chief. I can only say thank you ever so much and shall see you in the forthcoming school year, my appreciation shall be expressed. I thank you sincerely

Community Development Conference For Florida In June

Industrial development trends in the southeast, state community awards programs, beautification, agricultural business trends, county and municipal park development and leadership in the attractions industry highlight the 17th annual conference of the Southeastern Community Development Association. The Association will meet at Indian Rocks Beach, Florida on June 12 and 13.

Dr. John C. Caldwell, Chancellor of North Carolina State University will be the conference's key speaker according to Mark M. Wheeler, president of the southeastern regional organization.

Wheeler, who is also Director of Community Development for the Florida Power Corporation, reported that other speakers at the conference include Richard Hackendahl, Director of the National Council on Urban Affairs, Washington D. C., John M. Lewis, Executive Vice President of the Kentucky State Chamber of Commerce, James Pionie, Executive Director, Orlando-Orange County Industrial Board, Richard I. McLaughlin, Industrial Development Manager of the Florida Power Corporation, and others.

"We are inviting any organization in the southeast interested in Community Development to attend the conference," Wheeler said, "for we are all working to better the places in which we live. Our conferences have never been limited to membership only. Information to the conference may be secured from the Secretary, SECD, Knoxville Chamber of Commerce, Knoxville, Tennessee. The Knoxville Chamber has served as our headquarters since our organization in 1952."

SECD promotes community development in all its phases throughout the southeast, and includes in its membership organizations and individuals from the 13 southern states below the Mason-Dixon Line including Texas. Membership includes community development specialists in utilities companies, chambers of commerce, banks, extension agents of land-grant colleges, agricultural related industries and state, sectional, area and local community development groups.

Fulton Kills Mass Teacher Transfer Rumor

Superintendent Robert W. Fulton made the following statement at the May 20 meeting of the Palm Beach County School Board.

"It was recently reported by someone, at some level — and sometimes I cannot fathom how such reports get out — that 70 per cent of the (classroom teacher) personnel in this county may be transferred."

"This is erroneous, wrong, and misrepresents the truth. It is not the truth, never will be the truth. Therefore, I want it quashed. This is nothing but rumor."

"There will be none of this (large scale) gross transfer of personnel. (Such statements) are rumors, and, of course, we have many rumors circulating regarding school matters."

Board Chairman Dr. A. Donald Thorp added the following comment:

"I am glad you (Mr. Fulton) have clarified... for the Board. I immediately heard these charged thoughts from school teachers who envisioned a mass transfer higher and you, without rhyme nor reason, as you (Mr. Fulton) have so stated, there is no basis in fact for it at all."

(Directly under discussion was the proposal for future centralized assigning of teachers being presented to the Board by Assistant Superintendent Ed Clyde E. Harris. Immediately prior to Mr. Fulton's statement, Board member Mr. Robert M. Hooker had noted, "... Another reason (besides desegregation) for central assignment (is) to improve procedure for hiring new teachers." It was also stated in this discussion that principals will continue to be involved in hiring processes).

Sportsmen Spend Over $183 Million

TALLAHASSEE — It's no secret that hunting and fishing is one of Florida's great industries and that it accounts in large measure for the Sunshine State's annual tourist business. The recreational delights of these sports are matched by a growing awareness that — dollar-wise — hunting and fishing contributes to the bank account of all Florida citizens.

According to W. B. Copeland, chairman of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, hunters and fresh water fishermen contributed more than an estimated $183 million to Florida's expanding economy during the fiscal year 1966-67, and will contribute even more during the year, ending June 30.

Copeland said, "During the fiscal year 1966-67, resident and non-resident sportsmen spent $183,454,735 for hunting and fishing licenses. This license fee is used by the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission to support the business of hunting and fishing in Florida."

He added, "Our survey of fishing pressure indicates that approximately fifty percent of the fresh water fishermen in Florida do not purchase a fishing license and therefore do not contribute to the support of the hunting and fishing business in Florida."

A Shau Valley... Seesaw Battle

Editor's Note: (The following was in a paper sent to Mrs. R. L. Barrett from Viet Nam, containing quotes from her son.)

"The fire was coming up so heavy it sounded like a steady rain, was a solid red wall beside me."

Capt. Denny Miner of Harrisburg, Pa., termed as he recalled that initial assault April 19 into this long, green valley near the Laotian border. Miner, a helicopter pilot in the 1st Air Cavalry Division, was in the first wave that entered the Communist stronghold.

American troops had not entered the valley in force for two years. North Vietnamese troops, using Russian-made anti-aircraft weapons, were in bunkers and ready.

Pilots here said 10 choppers were destroyed the first day by the enemy gunners and another 13 were hit so badly they just managed to limp back to base.

"That first day was hell," Miner said. "The fire was coming up so heavy it sounded like another engine running alongside. You know, usually the upcoming rounds make a crackling sound, you can hear, but this was a steady roar. I looked out the side window and it was a solid red wall beside me. All those tracers."

Miner, red-eyed from lack of sleep, paused. "We were so lucky. We didn't take a single hit."

Many of his friends were not so lucky. Machine gun fire from the North Vietnamese in bunkers blasted the tail of a ship directly in front of Miner. He had to swerve sharply to miss the rotar blade that spun by his head.

"The copter just came down in a long streak of fire. It exploded in the air and then again on the ground."

Another twin-bladed chopper heavily loaded with supplies took direct fire through its thin-skinned underbelly and plunged to the ground. Vought recalls seeing an explosion and the chopper crew was lost.

But by some miracle they were blown free and survived. Other rescue choppers coming in for them were waved off because of heavy fire from North Vietnamese troops. The four crewmen ran up the grassy hillside until they reached a position covered by 1st Cavalry troops.

1st Lt. Richard E. Barrett of Belle Glade, Fla., went in with his chopper loaded with troops.

"Everything was coming up at us. It looked terrible out there. But you get kind of used to it. You accept the inevitability of it. You think, am I getting it this time?"

Skytroopers, as the 1st Cavalrymen call themselves, found light ground resistance once they got in position. But the helicopters took a severe beating. Miner said it was the biggest loss of choppers in one day he could recall.

Another pilot on the first wave was WO Dale Fillmore of Pendleton, Ore. "It was just a curtain of fire out there. I looked ahead of me and there wasn't any place to dodge. You just had to go through it and hope for the best." He made it without a scratch.

But another ship in front of him took a bad hit and lurched so suddenly that one troop-er was thrown out while the craft was still more than 100 feet up.

"The radio kept up a constant stream," Barrett recalled, "of stuff like this: 'I'm hit, going down. There's red smoke, what do you want?' There's some yelling. I'm hit, going down."

By the second day however, the anti-aircraft fire had fallen off sharply as waves after waves of Navy, Air Force and Marine jets pounded the positions and were followed by B52 bombers at night. With the exception of a couple of pockets, the A Shau Valley belonged to the 1st Cavalry after four days.
